Summary

COVID-19 has struck our local immigrant communities hard. According to recent data from the Marion County Public Health Department, Hispanic/Latinx residents have had the highest COVID-19 cases per 100,000 population compared to white residents. In comparison, black residents have experienced the highest number of deaths per 100,000 population cumulatively.

- Largest – Latinx (2,240 cases per 100,000 population)
- Second largest – African Americans (1,380 cases per 100,000 population)
- Third largest – Asian Pacific Islanders (1,000 makeup cases per 100,000 population)

Inequities in our social services and healthcare systems have put communities of color, immigrants, and refugees at an increased risk of exposure to the COVID-19. These community members are also more likely to test positive with a serious case and suffer from the economic impact of the illness due to loss of earnings.

Our vision for this toolkit is to inform local organizations, leaders, and policy makers about the hardships facing our immigrant and refugee communities due to COVID-19. This toolkit aims to provide culturally sensitive solutions that can improve existing services and policies to serve our immigrant and refugee neighbors better.

What's Included

- An overview of the barriers that contribute to health and wellness inequities among immigrant and refugee communities
- Relevant COVID-19 resources for all immigrants regardless of their status
- Tools for organizations to build their capacity to work with diverse populations

Identifying Major Barriers

Documentation Status

In Marion County alone, foreign-born immigrants make up 9.2 percent of our population. Of those residents, approximately 37.7 percent are undocumented. Being undocumented creates serious barriers to obtaining services like affordable healthcare and safe housing.¹

English Language Proficiency

Nearly one-third of immigrants living in Marion County have limited English language proficiency. Of those, the top three languages spoken at home besides English are Spanish, Burmese dialects, and Chinese. Public health efforts to curb and control COVID-19 are only useful if emergency communications are improved to include those who speak languages other than English.²

COVID-19 Resources for Immigrant and Refugee Populations

Healthcare Resources

Most healthcare and insurance providers require personal identification information that prevents immigrants and refugees, especially those without documentation, from accessing critical healthcare services. The list below contains links to local providers that work with undocumented individuals and provide multilingual services.

Eskenazi Health

Eskenazi Health provides medical care to immigrants living in Marion County through its Health Advantage program. Individuals looking for assistance should call Eskenazi's financial counseling department for more information. Click here to visit their website.

NeedyMeds

NeedyMeds is an online, national database connecting people to programs to help them afford their medications and other healthcare costs. Their Free/Low-cost/Sliding Scale medical clinic listing provides vital information about eligibility requirements such as income, accepted insurance, fees, and languages spoken. Housing and Utility Resources

Nationwide Eviction Moratorium

The Center for Disease Control and Prevention issued a nationwide eviction moratorium that offers protections to most renters from eviction until the end of the year. Individuals must have earned less than $99,000 per year, and couples must have earned less than $198,000, or had received a stimulus check. Click here to learn more. If a landlord refuses to acknowledge the eviction ban, tenants should seek immediate legal help.

Indiana Legal Services (ILS) Eviction Hotline

ILS has launched a legal assistance hotline to provide renters and tenants with information about their housing rights, protections, and elections. Click here to learn more.

Capacity Building Tools for Social Service Agencies and Non-profits

Translation and Interpretation Resources

In 2018, over 30 percent of immigrants living in Marion County had limited English language proficiency. For this reason, emergency materials that are both culturally sensitive and language accessible are in high demand. Non-profits and social service agencies that work with diverse populations should assess their current capacity to provide their constituents with multilingual services and consider implementing a language access line to meet community needs.

LUNA Language Services

Luna provides numerous language services in more than 200 spoken languages and American Sign Language (ASL). Staff is available 24/7 to assist with any language-related needs, including interpreting, translation, localization, transcription, and video voice-over. Click here to learn more about their COVID-19 resources.

Cultural Training Resources

Navigating Culture and Bias Training

Last updated on 10.13.2020

The Immigrant Welcome Center has launched a highly interactive and engaging workshop that provides teams with an opportunity to unpack the layers of culture, privilege, and power while identifying how these concepts create opportunities to work effectively with immigrants and refugees. The workshop also aims to create a safe space for organizations and institutions to examine their ideas and biases while learning tools to implement cultural humility practices when working with a diverse and multicultural community. Click here to learn more.

Aunt Bertha

Aunt Bertha connects people seeking help and verified social care providers that serve them. Navigating the system to get help has often been difficult, time-consuming, and frustrating. Too many Americans are suffering, and they don't need to. Aunt Bertha makes it easy for people to find social services in their communities, for nonprofits to coordinate their efforts, and for customers to integrate social care into the work they already do.
